

IAHR VENEZUELA YOUNG PROFESSIONALS NETWORK

2022 Annual Report of Activities

Venezuela
Young Professionals
Network

1. Our vision and mission

Officially created the May 6, 2019, the YPN Venezuela is composed by 16 members (young professionals) all professionals in the hydro-environment engineering sector. Due to complex conditions in our home country, some of us are currently living in different regions of the world (Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, France, Sweden and Venezuela). This particularity of our YPN makes it an innovative initiative that seeks to adapt to today's challenges and enables us to strengthen our links as young Venezuelan professionals living around the world. The creation of the YPN Venezuela is a great opportunity for us to stay connected to the hydro-environment sector worldwide and also provides us with many advantages to continue our professional development. All the members of the YPN Venezuela are honored to be a part of the IAHR and are look forward to contribute to the development of the IAHR YPN community.

2. Main goals and key objectives in 2022

6.1. Collaboration with IAHR

Veronica Leon, member of the YPN Venezuela, is leading since November 2020 the project “IAHR Women’s Voices” in collaboration with the IAHR task force on Strengthening Gender Equity and the IAHR secretariat in Madrid. Ingrid Silva also from the YPN Venezuela continued her leadership in this initiative.

The Women’s Voices video series provides the opportunity to IAHR women members to introduce themselves and their background, explain why it is important to them to work in the hydro-environmental field, the challenges they are confronted with, and reflect about specific research topics or actual events such as COVID-19, floods, droughts, the world congress, etc. (<https://iahr.org/index/detail/245>)

This year Dayana Pita participated in this activity where she was able to talk about her professional life and her experiences in the hydro-environmental field.
